THE SQUARE TO SHUT ITS DOORS THIS YEAR

Music venue to be redeveloped, but managers 'looking at new site'

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

HARLOW'S iconic live music venue The Square will move from its current premises in Fourth Avenue when it closes later this year.

The announcement was made by SquareOne Entertainment after site owners Circle Housing Group unveiled plans to redevelop the plot into housing – along with the neighbouring YWCA hostel.

The news has rocked supporters of the venue, which has launched the careers of many bands and hosted such high profile acts as Coldplay, Supergrass and George Ezra.

The Subways' Billy Lunn tweeted: "The Square is closing down. I could cry right now. Don't get many chances to go nowadays, but this is a travesty."

But SquareOne say they are currently assessing the feasibility of an attractive new site that "appears to present a very exciting opportunity to relocate, revamp and reinvigorate Harlow's favourite live entertainment venue".

Concern

Speaking ahead of an invite-only meeting today (Thursday), Circle Housing South Anglia managing director Tracy White said: "We understand people's concerns about the future of The Square and are working with the management team to secure an alternative venue.

"We have been working with Harlow Council for a substantial amount of time to form a proposal for the redevelopment of this area and provide much-needed housing for local people."

The venue was threatened with closure in 2007 and SquareOne took over the running of the venue following the departure of Essex County Council in July 2008.

Their occupancy of the building was always intended to be short-

Easter Bunny hops in for an end-of-term treat

THE Easter Bunny surprised pupils at a Harlow primary when he bounced into the playground for an end-of-term treat.

As a reward for working so hard the VIP visitor arrived to entertain the children at Jerounds Primary in Pyenest Road.

After following treasure hunt clues left by the bunny, the youngsters returned to their classrooms to find their Easter baskets filled with chocolate eggs

Steph Miles, the school's senior administrator, said: "The children had a lovely time meeting the Easter Bunny and really enjoyed their chocolate eggs."

Town wins share of recycling cash

Money will be used to roll out rewards scheme

HARLOW Council is one of four local authorities in Essex to get a share of £900,000 for a scheme designed to push up recycling rates.

Harlow, along with Braintree, Epping Forest and Tendring councils, has been given the money from the Department for Communities and Local Government's recycling reward scheme which aims to help councils increase their recycling rates by offering incentives such as shopping and loyalty rewards.

Essex County Council's funding and investment team helped to guide the partnership and prepare the bid for the funding. The result was an award of £896,468, which represented 20 per cent of the total pot and the largest single amount handed out by DCLG.

It will enable the four councils to work together and roll out a reward scheme aimed at increasing recycling participation rates among households and in schools.

Jason Searles, head of Commissioning Sustainable Essex Integration and Waste at County Hall, said: "We are working in partnership with the districts and boroughs to increase recycling rates across the county. I congratulate the authorities involved in this successful bid.

"Through this scheme we expect an increase in the overall rates of recycling and a reduction in the amount of non-recyclable waste being sent for disposal in Essex, which is not only good for the environment but also results in a saving to the county as a whole."

The county council's funding and investment team provides businesses, charities and public sector organisations with additional bid-writing capacity, specialist advice and the strategic direction required to secure competitive funding.

The Square to close in autumn for rebuilding term, due to the poor condition of the building and the long-term plan to redevelop the site.

A statement from SquareOne Entertainment said: "Accordingly, the short-term lease has been extended several times and, in 2012, a longer lease in the current building seemed possible when a proposal to convert the neighbouring YWCA building to residential apartments was considered.

"Unfortunately, this project was cancelled after renovation of both buildings was fully costed, and so the short lease rolled on.

"Throughout this time, SquareOne Entertainment have been working closely with the landlords, Circle Housing Group and representatives from Harlow Council to identify an alternative location for a live music venue.

"Various options have been proposed so far, including existing, unused buildings in Harlow and completely new developments, so far without meeting our requirements.

Timely

"That search may well have come to a timely end, and we hope to be able to announce plans of a new venue for The Square in Harlow soon.

"SquareOne see this as a hugely positive step, as the current building has had little opportunity for investment with the constant shadow of redevelopment over it.

"We feel that Harlow deserves a top class Live Entertainment Venue, and the opportunity Circle Housing have given SquareOne, by allowing The Square to continue as a music venue following ECC's departure has been much appreciated by all involved and helped get us to this next stage in our development. Please feel free to comment on our Facebook page."

The Square will continue to function with a full programme of events until final dates are confirmed.

70th anniversaries for neighbouring couples

Harlow locals married within weeks of each other in 1945

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

IN APRIL 1945 the Second World War was coming to an end, George VI was on the throne and a collection of small villages occupied the swathe of Essex countryside that, a decade later, was to become Harlow New Town.

It was also the year that two couples – who 70 years later live just a couple of doors away from each other off First Avenue – were married within a fortnight of each other.

Jack and Evelyn Baker tied the knot on March 17, and just two weeks later Bert and Doris Page followed them down the aisle. Evelyn and Doris were friends before they met their future husbands.

The couples, who are now celebrating their platinum wedding anniversaries, have been neighbours for all their married lives.

As children, Evelyn went to Fawbert and Barnards Primary School, Jack attended Eastwick School, Bert was a pupil at Churchgate School and Doris went to Netteswell School.

Courting

Bert, now 97, was born in Leicester and moved to the village of Harlow (now Old Harlow) when he was 11. He met Doris, now 92, when he was a teenager and they started courting, but were separated after the Second World War broke out.

During his four-and-a-half years of Army service Bert was stationed in Italy, France, Germany and Egypt, where he was briefly hospitalised after contracting malaria.

"Everyone thought the war would last for only six months but it ended up being six years," he said.

"I was granted leave to marry Doris at St Andrew's Church in Netteswell, before returning to the front line five days later."

Bert was demobbed eight months after they married and returned to Harlow, where the couple have lived ever since.

Jack, now 96, and Evelyn, 93, were aged 26 and 23 respectively when they married at Little Parndon Church in almost identical circumstances, as Jack also served in the Army during the war.

Both couples held their wedding receptions at the former Women's Institute Hall, now the Burnt Mill Snooker and Social Club, off Edinburgh Way.

Jack said: "I can't really remember our first date but we used to go out for walks. It was all you could do in those days, we didn't expect anything else."

Bert, one of nine children, is a former engineer, while Doris worked for many years as a lab technician in Old Harlow. The couple have two children, five grandchildren, ten great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

Jack and Evelyn have one daughter and two grandchildren. Evelyn, who worked for the Home Office, said: "I can't put into words what I feel makes a successful marriage but having good health makes a difference."

Having seen Harlow develop from suburban countryside to a thriving post-war town, the couples have mixed views on the transformation.

Evelyn said: "It was sad to see our woodland and fields being built on and trees being cut down. I kept thinking 'oh no, that's something else gone'."

But Doris added: "We have been happy living here and have a nice social life."

We want fair share for all

SIR The main political parties not only seek to convince us there is no alternative to an austerity programme, they seek to convince us that they want to make work pay.

Yet instead of doing this by increasing wages they cut the welfare benefits of the poorest.

Why do our democratic representatives value the rich and penalise the more unfortunate members of our community? Why do our MPs legislate such a small minimum wage and vote for reductions of already small benefits when they themselves want an increased salary which is already well over the double the wage most of their electorate enjoy?

None of us asked to be born and so we all really do deserve to have a fair share of the world's resources. I believe in a generous God who has provided for all, yet we allow this wealth to be accumulated in the hands of a tiny privileged minority.

Moreover, the parties confuse work and employment. Rather than organise the sharing of the gifts of the whole community to enable all to have a good life, the present system seeks to enslave a large section of the population in meaningless poorly paid labour producing things we do not need and wasting valuable resources simply to allow a tiny minority to make a profit and accumulate 90 per cent of the wealth.

If the main parties are unable to offer more or to inspire us to a vision of a better society then we should turn to those who will.

Rev Dennis Nadin
Willowfield, Harlow

Too much paid out in benefits

SIR In response to the person who complained about being worse off by working (Letters, April 2), they were not better off on benefits, they were lucky.

Lucky in that we had a government that spent money willy-nilly that is.

To get so much money in benefits was obscene. I am not saying that people do not deserve help, but benefits were obviously way too excessive.

I have never claimed for anything and work hard for what I have. Yes, we as a family struggle day to day and I wish we could have more, but sometimes life is hard and we have to accept it.

The previous Labour government put our country into serious debt by paying out too many and unnecessary benefits. The last government was trying to get us back on track.

The Conservatives stated right from the start of their term that to achieve this would hit people hard and it has. But I am sure we all will reap the rewards in the future.

We have all as a nation, sacrificed something because of the way Labour badly handled the country's finances. Please let's not go back there again!

I trust the Tories with our money. I do not particularly agree with everything they do, but another Labour spell really scares me.

Time to scrap 4-hour target

SIR A thought in response to the letter from Dr Mark Porter published in last week's Star.

READER PHOTO OF THE WEEK

fantastic reviews."

■ If you have a photo you would like to be featured as our Photo of the Week, email a high resolution copy, along with a description of your photo and details of where and when it was taken, to star@hertsessexnews.co.uk. Please include your name and address and insert 'Photo of the Week' in the subject line.

Getting to see a GP is now more difficult, especially out of hours and because of the the closure of most walk-in centres. The 111 system's frequent referrals add to the A&E workload.

Many of these cases are trivial and would usually be easily treated elsewhere but because of the four-hour target people know they will be seen.

It could save many such visits if the four-hour target was removed. Patients could then be seen strictly in order of medical need. Those with trivial complaints would soon give up waiting and would seek help elsewhere, thus reducing the workload on A&E staff.

But Dr Porter is right - politicians have deliberately infected the organisation with destructive competition and cash starvation as a result of which our precious NHS is dying the slow death of a thousand cuts.

Ian Kennett
Felmongers, Harlow

Cuts hit the vulnerable

SIR When we look at the track record of the coalition government over the past five years we need to be very careful before choosing to put them back in power for another term of office.

Chancellor George Osborne, has been defined by his cuts and austerity programme and David Cameron told us in February 2013 that it was because of this programme that his administration was paying down Britain's debts.

Nothing could be further from the truth. The UK national debt in December 2014 was £1.483bn (81 per cent of Gross Domestic Product) and the budget deficit - the difference between Government income and expenditure - is still up at £91bn when the Chancellor promised us that it would be down to £37bn this year.

The overwhelming majority of people are not feeling the benefit of any recovery. Tax and benefit changes since 2010 have left families on average £1,127 a year worse off.

Although it is true that employment under the Coalition Government went up by five per cent, income tax and national insurance revenues fell by four per cent. This is mainly because of low pay, frozen pay, zero-hour contracts and because more people have been forced to become self-employed because they couldn't find any other work.

What we need is a government who will secure the future of the NHS by increasing the number of nurses by 20,000, the number of GPs by 8,000 and the number of midwives by 3,000, as well as investing in our mental health services.

We need a government which will build 200,000 affordable houses each year, raise the minimum wage to £8 an hour and ban exploitative zero hours contracts.

If the last government is given another five years in power, the cuts and austerity programme will intensify with another £12bn of cuts in the welfare budget taken from the most vulnerable in our society - the unemployed, the disabled and those on housing benefit.

George Irving
Sycamore Field, Harlow

New model for permits

SIR Councillors are very well aware of the difficulties with the current visitors parking permits (Letters).

I realise many older people, not necessarily with serious health problems still rely on visits from friends and family for company.

Some will have given up driving due to age and the high cost of running a car, the bus services are very poor and waiting in the cold and rain becomes more difficult with age.

The previous Conservative administration introduced the current system without sufficient consideration of the consequences. We were not able to reverse the decision so we have negotiated a new model with North Essex Parking Partnership.

The model we hope to introduce will enable residents to purchase a one-year permit for three registered cars which could be modified during the year. The permit would only be usable by one car at any one time.

There would be a charge to cover administration costs but much less than the current cost. Residents could still buy additional day permits as at present.

There will be consultation with residents on this before implementation.

Cllr Edna Stevens (Labour)
Civic Centre, Harlow

Stop feeding the pigeons

SIR I'm not sure if this has been raised before but the problem with pigeons in the town centre is getting worse week by week.

The bus station area is particularly filthy with mess and people have stopped using some of the seating areas because of the fear of being fouled on from above.

Other parts of the town centre have become like mini Trafalgar Squares and this isn't being helped by people keep feeding them and encouraging nesting in the area.

I like wildlife but enjoy it in local parks and the back gardens. If people want to feed wildlife they should go to the Town Park or the Water Gardens where there are ducks.

Pigeons breed like rats and it is hard to get rid of them once they know they will keep being fed in a certain area.

Bikers laden with eggs make hospital delivery

A LARGE group of bikers showed their sweet side by organising an Easter egg hunt for youngsters in the children's ward at Princess Alexandra Hospital.

Members of Outlaws Essex and The Rough Creed motorcycle clubs started from Roydon and travelled through Epping Forest before heading back to Harlow, collecting donated Easter eggs on the way. By the time they had finished they had picked up 400 eggs which they then delivered to the hospital.

Hunt organiser Rob Fry said: "We are very pleased with the effort everybody puts in to this event year after year.

"Every year it seems to build momentum. The satisfaction that so many bikers have taken a moment out of their day to visit and think of people who are worse off than themselves shows the best part of human nature."

He added: "Our thoughts are with everyone in the hospital and we wish them all a huge get well soon."

The event is supported by Happymoves Ltd, Harlow Foodbank and The Stow One Stop.

PAH struggled during 'winter crisis' period

Trust reported 18 'significant' incidents

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

SERVICES at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital were put under serious pressure because of a combination of high demand and staff sickness, it was revealed this week.

Figures showed that between November 11 last year and January 9 the hospital experienced "operational problems" on 33 separate occasions, with A&E capacity proving a major issue.

The data, released following a Freedom of Information request by the Labour Party, showed that pressures to meet the demand for beds and space were a significant factor for more than 20 of those days.

The problems were particularly serious in the lead up to Christmas when hospital authorities urged people to stay home unless it was an absolute emergency.

According to the PAH Trust there were 18 "significant incidents" - categorised as any event that cannot be managed within routine arrangements and requiring the implementation of special procedures - during the reporting period.

That figure is within the expected range for the time of year and for the size of population served by the hospital.

During the period patients were kept waiting for several hours to see a doctor and the case of one man who was moved into a hospital storage cupboard because of the lack of space was reported in the national press.

The children's ward was particularly affected due to overcrowding while the absence of staff as a result of sickness in late November led to the hospital having to bring in agency replacements.

A PAH spokesperson said: "For each of the significant incidents the trust, together with its community health partners, successfully activated a well-rehearsed response plan to deal with the particular pressure and return to normal operation at the earliest opportunity."

Suzi Stride, Labour's parliamentary candidate for Harlow, blamed government cutbacks for a crisis which she described as shocking.

"These problems are a direct result of David Cameron's policies of cuts in social care, an inadequate supply of GPs and the debacle of NHS 111," she said.

"These factors have combined to create a perfect storm in the NHS which has driven hospital services to breaking point."

However, Conservative parliamentary candidate Robert Halfon said PAH had taken steps to improve the service.

He said: "These figures show we've had a tough winter at PAH. We have one of the highest attendances per bed in the country and more patients than ever before from outside the area were going to the PAH."

"However, these figures stop in January and since then major steps forward have been made."

Gym offers £2k reward after break-in

THE owners of a Harlow gym are offering a £2,000 reward after it was broken into on Monday evening.

More than £1,000 was taken from Ripped Gym, in Wych Elm, during the burglary.

The gym has posted CCTV footage on its Facebook page showing two hooded people stealing a till from the premises. The video is timed at 8.30pm.

It is thought a third person was involved.

Anyone with more information about the break-in should contact Harlow police on the non-emergency 101 number or Ripped Gym on (01279) 433043.

New shelter at play field

Ceremony marks official opening

Simon Murfitt

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

A COVERED seating area paid for with grants of almost £7,000 has been officially opened at the memorial playing field in North Weald.

The shelter, which has been constructed near the children's playground, will give people somewhere to sit during bad weather.

The money was provided by Essex County Council's Big Society Fund and the Stansted Airport Community Trust.

North Weald parish councillor Brian Bartram, who is also chairman of the Queens Hall Charity trustees, said the shelter was provided for the use of all members of the community.

Seating

"There was no seating at all at the playing fields and nothing there for older children," he said. "There is a toddler play area and then the cricket and football fields, but we thought it needed a shelter."

The Queens Hall Charity manages the hall and playing fields for the benefit of North Weald residents.

Cllr Bartram said the idea of a shelter had come after consulting groups which used Queens Hall, adding: "So far it's been very well used, not just by the youth, and when we get better weather hopefully more will be using it."

An official opening ceremony was held last month during which North Weald Bassett Parish Council chairman Cyril Hawkins cut the ribbon.

Elaine Godwin-Brown, another of the Queens Hall Charity trustees, added: "In the short time that the shelter has been in place it has been well received and used by visitors of all ages."

The ceremony also saw the dedication of the playing fields which have been safeguarded as a Queen Elizabeth II Fields site as part of the Fields in Trust Diamond Jubilee programme.

Mrs Godwin-Brown said: "The dedication of the playing field will help to ensure that it is available to future generations as a recreational area."

Hat's the way to celebrate Easter at care home with bonnet competition

RESIDENTS at a care home in Harlow put their creative talents to good use when they celebrated Easter by holding a bonnet-making competition.

The residents of Ashlyn Healthcare, in Vicarage Wood, spent several days designing and decorating their colourful headgear in the lead up to the judging which took place on Thursday.

The winner of the competition was Hannah Rolph, who was presented with some chocolate and a large stuffed duck.

Care home manager Eileen Mountford said a total of 15 bonnets were made for the competition.

Weeks

"They took a long time over the bonnets and had been working on them for two weeks.

"Hannah was so proud to have won and everyone thoroughly enjoyed it. The smiles on their faces said it all.

"This was the second year of the competition, and was much more successful than last year."

Making and wearing bonnets is a traditional activity to celebrate the redemption and spiritual renewal promised by Easter.

The practice dates back to the 16th century when it was popular for women to wear their bonnets to Easter parades and religious services.

Artist Jim draws winning ticket in raffle fundraiser

THE first prize in a raffle organised by the Gibberd Gallery and the Friends of Harlow Sculpture has been won by a local artist.

The winning ticket was drawn by Jim Peel, a watercolour artist and art teacher whose painting of the Clock Tower near Potter Street was the first prize.

The painting was won by Jill McLintic, a member of the WAGS art group which meets at the Baptist Church in Old Harlow on Thursday mornings.

Proceeds from the raffle will go to different projects at the gallery, including replacing the signs for the permanent collection of watercolours bequeathed to the town by Harlow masterplanner Sir Frederick Gibberd.

Mr Peel is pictured picking the ticket with Jenny Lushington, chair of the Friends of Harlow Sculpture and the Gibberd Gallery.

Election hopefuls on campaign trail in battle for votes

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

CANDIDATES in the battle for the Harlow seat at next month's General Election have stepped up their campaigns to win the support of voters.

Conservative Robert Halfon chatted to volunteers and clients when he visited charity Harlow Street2Homes on Tuesday. He also launched his battle bus and was joined by placard-waving supporters in the town centre over the weekend to drum up support among shoppers.

"It has been a really good week," he said. "Many traditional Labour voters have said they are going to support me because I work hard for Harlow and they support my work on illegal encampments."

"There is a long way to go, but I'm getting the best response I've ever had in any of my four elections."

His Labour Party rival Suzy Stride visited the offices of the Alzheimer's Society at the Latton Bush Centre and an over-60s hub at Staple Tye where she answered questions about the NHS and the town's bus services.

"It was great to discuss our plans for the NHS, which include 20,000 more nurses, 8,000 more GPs and cancer tests guaranteed within one week," she said.

The candidates (in alphabetical order)

- Dave Brown: TUSC
- Eddy Butler: English Democrats
- Robert Halfon: Conservatives
- Murray Sackwild: Green
- Geoff Seeff: Liberal Democrats
- Sam Stopplecamp: Ukip
- Suzy Stride: Labour

"Many people also also highlighted bus services. Essex County Council still needs to improve the reliability of bus information and services and I will continue to press the council and make the case for change."

Liberal Democrat candidate Dr Geoff Seef took the opportunity to champion the party's intentions to improve mental health care when he appeared on BBC Essex.

He said: "For too long mental health has been the Cinderella of medical practice, ignored because it cannot be seen in the same way as a broken limb and because the symptoms can be embarrassing.

"However, poor mental health is as much a disability to the sufferer as poor physical health and, unless treated, can result in self-harm and harm to others."

Ukip supporters targeted both the Conservatives and Labour on social media as they continued their campaign to win votes for candidate Sam Stopplecamp.

Green candidate and teacher Murray Sackwild travelled to Harrogate for the annual National Union of Teachers conference on Tuesday but will be back on the campaign trail in Harlow today (Thursday).

English Democrat Eddy Butler was also in the town centre during the week to canvas for votes and will now turn his attention to leafleting.

He also released a campaign statement in which he detailed his party's plans for an English parliament and take a tough stance on immigration.

Dave Brown, who is standing for the Trade Union and Socialist Coalition, officially joined the race to become Harlow MP by handing in his nomination papers.

All seven candidates have been invited to take part in a hustings event at St Paul's Church in the town centre tonight (Thursday), starting at 7.30pm.

Keep-fit sessions for the elderly and 'exercise shy'

KEEPING fit can be tough even for those who are confident working out but one man has started a new class aimed at those who find the prospect of taking part in regular exercise sessions daunting.

For the past four weeks Lee Morgan has been running low intensity fitness classes for the elderly and physically challenged at the Latton Bush Centre in Southern Way, Harlow.

He said: "I know many older people go to Hertford or as far as Bishop's Stortford to keep fit so I wanted to start a new class that was local."

"We started off as quite a small class but through word of mouth we have grown and last week we had 12 people come down."

Mr Morgan, who has spent years working as a personal trainer, added that the sessions primarily focus on developing core body strength through exercises although weight training could be added once more members join in.

Sessions are held every Wednesday at 11am and cost £4. For more information call Mr Morgan on 07508 530437.

BOWLED OVER: There's much more to

ACE: Tenpin bowling expert Nich Taylor who runs the Harlow Senior Rollers

tenpin bowling than you might at first imagine

Strike out to enjoy

third most popular

sport in the world

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

"WELCOME to the third biggest sport in the world", says Nich Taylor. It may come as a surprise that he is talking about tenpin bowling.

Nich, 61, welcomed me to Harlow Bowl in Terminus Street where he runs a senior bowling league on Tuesdays. Today it is the turn of the youth club to take to the alleys.

"More people will pass through here today then will play football and go to a running club combined," said Nich.

We watch a small girl pick up a bowling ball that seems almost half her size. It's a wonder she doesn't fall over under its weight, but she rises and hurls it down the alley with some force, sending the pins flying. I'm impressed.

Youngest

"That's Ella," says Nich. "She's seven and the youngest of our youth team. She hasn't been bowling for long but I can see some real improvement already."

To me it seems a little harsh on the children to make them play with the side barriers set down, but Nich says that's all part of learning.

"She doesn't want them down and it's better that she doesn't so she can improve," he says.

Nich (with a high score of 270) is keen to turn the spotlight on a sport he feels doesn't get the respect it deserves. He tells me that part of the thrill of bowling is that the handicap system can allow everyone to compete on a level field.

Under the system, little Ella would be given an effective head start against a more experienced opponent and could even rival

TEAM SPIRIT: Harlow Senior Rollers bowling club members

Photos: Vikki Linco

Nich, who is considered to be the best in Harlow.

"The better bowler tends to win but not always," he said. "As I am the best everyone is always out to beat me and the higher up you go in sport the more psychological it becomes."

"Nutrition is a factor, too. I'm always saying to the younger ones that if they come to bowl without eating breakfast they have lost before they have started."

It's now that I realise that bowling is much more serious than I first thought. I speak to two married couples on the senior team who have come along for some extra practice.

"I come mostly for exercise" says 71-year-old Joyce (high score 168). "It can get quite tiring after three games as the balls are heavy to throw and it helps you develop balance."

Joyce has been coming bowling with husband Paul (high score

IMPRESSED: Star reporter William Mata

232) for two years but the pair never bowl together:

"We bowl in teams and it separates me and Paul as we never bowl with our partners," she said.

"It's great to play with different people."

The pair are joined by friends Bev, 63, and Jim Banner, 64, (high scores 136 and 168 respectively) who tell me they can pay more than £70 for a bowling ball and an additional £25 for shoes.

"We came for the social side and it's a really good place to socialise," said Bev. "When we moved here we didn't know anybody and this has been great to make friends. We all get along really well."

"Our team has developed a bit of a rivalry with Romford though and we can get quite competitive."

With my knowledge of bowling limited to what I've learned through watching The Big Lebowski and an episode of The Simpsons, there's much more to it than I realised. For a start you're not supposed to aim at the pins themselves.

"Everyone aims at the pins but

SKILLS: Richard Maslanka going through his paces

you've got to aim for the second arrow on the floor from the right if you're right handed and the left if you're left handed," says Nich. "It's about the angle rather than power, and it's all about getting the optimum angle every time."

"I've been nicknamed the machine for my ability to reproduce the same bowl over and over again. That's what allows bowlers to continue for so long and there's an 84-year-old I know who can beat me."

Captain

At the other end of the age spectrum is Jack Rust, who is the captain of the junior bowling team. Jack is just 15 but organises tournaments for the team and was elected after giving a stirring speech to his team mates.

"I like to come bowling as I can get away from my school work for a few hours," he says. "I love it and I'll even bring posters into school to advertise it."

As part of the youth club Jack plays bowls three rounds a week and benefits from some tuition.

I am someone who bowls about once a year and with a top score of 116 I would need a large boost on the handicap system to have any hope of competing with the guys I'm watching string endless strikes together.

I ask Nich to assess my game and he watches as I confidently strut to the line and bowl an average five. He shakes his head as I walk back and tells me I need to be drawing my arm back as I walk towards the line and plan my run up.

I try again, this time using his advice. I bowl four.

"It takes practice," smiles Nich. "I'll come here 30 times a week to practise getting the angle exactly right," he says.

No wonder they call him the machine.

Cat owner's warning after another case of anti-freeze poisoning

Family pet died within a day of displaying symptoms

William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

A CAT owner whose pet died after ingesting anti-freeze fears she may have been poisoned deliberately.

Tim O'Connell, 49, of Jerounds, Harlow, is warning other owners to take extra care of their pets after a vet confirmed the family's cat Maisy had become a victim of anti-freeze poisoning.

The fluid, which is used in car radiators, has a sweet taste, attacks the liver and can cause vomiting, seizures, breathing difficulties, co-ordination problems and increased thirst before death.

There have been a number of reports of cats dying from anti-freeze poisoning in Harlow. While some are thought to have been caused by animals licking anti-freeze leaking from the parked cars, there have been claims that in other cases the liquid has been placed on purpose.

Mr O'Connell said: "When Maisy started stumbling about we took her to the vet who checked her over but they weren't sure what was going on so we went home.

"During the course of the day she got worse so we took her back to the vets and they gave her another check. It was then they found she VICTIM: Maisy died after ingesting anti-freeze had anti-freeze poisoning. She died during the night."

Mr O'Connell believes Maisy's death was not an accident. "Maybe the people responsible don't realise they are killing cats or maybe they just want to get rid of cats by causing them to die.

"Some people leave out food covered with anti-freeze. I'm assuming they do it because they just hate cats.

"It's possible they are bird lovers or something like that. There are lots of cats round here and I have been out this morning to warn neighbours.

"It has been a sad couple of days. We got Maisy's body back from the vets so we could bury her."

Mr O'Connell, who has two daughters, already had one cat when the family adopted Maisy and her brother but he went missing last October.

"We never found him so something similar may have happened," he said. "We had three cats but now we only have one who is five years old.

"She suffers from anxiety, and is strating to tear her fur out again. It took her six months to get better when the last cat disappeared. We worry about her going out at all now."

A spokesman for animal charity RSPCA said: "We are deeply concerned and saddened about anti-freeze poisonings in cats across Britain. It can cause pain, suffering, distress and ultimately death.

"Poisoning cats can constitute a criminal offence. Under the Animal Welfare Act 2006 the maximum penalty for anyone found guilty is six months imprisonment and a £20,000 fine."

Shoppers were also treated to on-the-hour catwalk shows from noon-4pm featuring some of the best in high street fashion from a number of Water Gardens stores, including Next, River Island, Select and Topshop.

Throughout the day there was also free face-painting, a bouncy castle and a European market.

Centre manager Beryl Murphy said: "There was a fantastic atmosphere this year. We were delighted to give away over 1,000 chocolate eggs to the children of Harlow and see so many happy faces."

Bill piles on the £s ... by losing weight

Dad-of-two sheds 4½ stone and raises £2,600

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A FATHER-of-two who lost pounds in weight to gain pounds in cash for good causes has shared the financial rewards of his efforts with three groups.

Bill Manzi, 53, of Holmes Meadow, Harlow, has lost four-and-a-half stone since beginning a strict gym routine, raising £2,600 along the way.

He has donated the majority of the money – £2,000 – to St Clare Hospice but also gave £200 to Help the Heroes and the remaining £400 to a fundraising campaign organised by the family of a young girl with cerebral palsy.

"I feel really good about it all but it has been a hard process of getting all the money," he said. "It's great to finally be handing over the cash."

Mr Manzi, who works as a property manager at a firm of chartered surveyors, said his workout plan had given him a new lease of life and he plans to continue the regime.

"I am a big guy but I have managed to lose four-and-a-half stone," he said. "I will continue on my own terms and I aim to lose another four-and-a-half stone by the end of the year."

"By that time I will have lost a whole person of body weight."

"I feel a lot better now that I am fitter and it has made a difference to me."

He added: "I would like to say thank

FEELING GOOD: Bill Manzi presents some of the cash to Suzanne Nisbet. Above, as he was before he started to lose weight you to everyone who has supported me along the way, particularly the owners of the Paringdon Sports and Social Club as well as Liz and Leon who trained me at the gym. They have been fantastic."

Mr Manzi said the hospice was an obvious choice to receive the money as it relied on donations and had helped a lot of people he knows.

His decision to give some of the money to the parents of four-year-old Sophie Nolan, who are raising funds to send to America, came after he saw a poster about their campaign and met her aunt, Suzanne Nisbet.

"Sophie and her parents are based in Ireland but they have some family over here," he said.

The operation Sophie needs is not available in Ireland and there is no grant to help towards the cost.

"When I phoned Susanne she was overjoyed that somebody would do it off their own back."

Marathon challenge a dream come true for slimline Ritchie

A HARLOW man who lost more than 11 stone in just two years will be taking part in the London Marathon later this month to raise money for a cancer charity.

When Ritchie Parrott starts the 26.2-mile run on Sunday, August 26 it will complete a massive health transformation for the 45-year-old who weighed more than 27 stone when he started attending a Slimming World class back in 2012.

Mr Parrott, who had been overweight for all his adult life, decided to do something about it when, as a Gamesmaker volunteer at the London Olympics, he was inspired by the athletes taking part in the Paralympics.

"I felt like I was physically disabling myself by being overweight, something I could actively choose to change," he said. "So there and then I made the decision to lose weight."

Within a year of attending slimming classes he had come off his blood pressure medication and had the SMILES: Ritchie Parrott has lost more than 11 stone in two years. Below, as he was before he started slimming classes in 2012

He said: "I can't believe how far I've come in the past few years and all the incredible changes I've made to my lifestyle."

Family heartbroken at loss of an 'amazing' dad killed in M11 accident

Father-of-four was a popular and well-respected police officer

William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE family of a police officer who was killed in a three-vehicle collision on the M11 north of Harlow last month have paid an emotional tribute to him.

Married father-of four Jonathan Bull, 47, from Chatham in Kent, died in the collision on the northbound stretch of the motorway between junctions 8 and 9 on Friday, March 20.

The 47-year-old was a police officer serving with the Metropolitan force in south-east London.

In a statement released through Essex Police this week, his family said: "He was a long-standing police officer with the Metropolitan Police. He served the London borough of Bromley in various roles, more recently as a Safer Neighbourhood Officer supporting the local community.

"He will be sorely missed by his family, friends and his colleagues."

Mr Bull grew up in the Bromley area and attended Highfield Primary School, going on to study at Langley Park School for Boys. He joined the police in May 2004.

The family's tribute continued: "He was a well-respected police officer who was held in high regard by his colleagues and took pride in serving his community.

"He was an amazing father and husband, who took great pride in his children. His elder son would like to say on behalf of his younger brother and sisters that they cannot express how heartbroken they are at the loss of their dad.

FAMILY MAN: Jonathan Bull

"He was a funny, caring and supportive father who means the world to them and they will miss him so very much."

Mr Bull was travelling in a Ford Focus which was in collision with two other vehicles – a Volkswagen Golf and a VW Transporter van.

Three other people were taken to hospital. One of them, a 40-year-old man from Sidcup in Kent, was later arrested on suspicion of causing death by dangerous driving.

He was released bailed pending further police enquiries until Wednesday, June 24.

The motorway was closed for five hours while the emergency service dealt with the aftermath of the accident.

Mike's making headlines with his newspaper delivery service

ONE man's dream of bringing back a traditional morning ritual – reading a daily newspaper – has turned into a thriving business.

Mike Stent started his newspaper delivery operation One Click Papers in 2009 when he became disheartened that fewer and fewer newsagents were offering a home delivery service to people in Harlow.

Today, six years later, his team of 17 – including 15 paperboys and girls – and six drivers deliver almost 5,000 publications from its base at the Latton Bush Business Centre, in South-ern Way, to more than 500 customers.

He said: "Why did shops stop delivering newspapers? How could such a simple service not work anymore?"

"People are still buying newspapers and it didn't make sense that they were no longer being delivered."

He added: "It has been a massive success. I had estimated that maybe 200 people would sign up but it has gone way above my expectations.

"There is no minimum order and all new customers receive four weeks with no delivery charge."

Where are they now?

HERE at the Star we have been rifling through the boxes of brown envelopes stored in our photographic archive and pulled out these pictures.

We're hoping you can spot yourself in the photos – or point out someone you know.

Perhaps our older readers will be able to recognise their son and daughters in these shots taken by our staff photographers.

This week we travelled back to the late 1990s to feature three school photos taken in Harlow. They feature children from Purford Green School holding a sponsored silence, a protest to save the former Maunds Wood Primary School and pupils celebrating everything that is Australian at Spinney Infant School.

We'd love to hear what memories these pictures evoke, so please email william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk with your thoughts and observations. And enjoy your trip down memory lane.

It's better for butterflies

THERE'S some good news for Britain's butterfly population after a new study showed their numbers are increasing, thanks in part to the warm weather at the start of last year.

The study carried out by the charity Butterfly Conservation and the Centre for Ecology and Hydrology looked at 56 different types of butterflies and found the numbers in more than half were going up.

Around 100,000 more butterflies were counted across the UK than in the previous year.

One particular type of butterfly – the critically endangered High Brown Fritillary – almost doubled in number while the population of others including the Marbled White, Ringlet and Brimstone were also at the highest for more than 30 years.

Dr Tom Bereton, a spokesman for Butterfly Conservation, said: "The High Brown Fritillary is one of only two butterflies classed as critically endangered in the UK so it is fantastic news that numbers are at their highest level for more than a decade."

Here in Harlow many pubs are named after butterflies including The Purple Emperor, The Drinker Moth, The White Admiral, The Willow Beauty, The Small Copper and The Essex Skipper.

Life was different and those years from 1914 - 1918 challenged both those who lived in the cities and the countryside. Razed Roof is also looking for local connections for its next production Lusitania: The Floating Palace.

PUNK is BACK

PUNKS looking for a nostalgic hit can see Harlow's legendary power-trio The Newtown Neurotics tomorrow (Friday).

Performing at The Pipeline in east London, the three-piece are hoping to introduce a new generation to their politically-charged songs but say its proximity to the General Election is "happy co-incidence".

Frontman Steve Drewett, who reformed the band in 2006, will take to the stage alongside original '70s line-up drummer Simon Lomond and new recruit Adam Smith, who joined the band in 2007.

"The return to playing live was because of a couple of factors," explained Steve. "Simon asked me if I fancied doing some gigs with him back on drums as the Neurotics hadn't played for three years and he was very much missing playing live."

The trio has also been invited to play at the Rebellion Festival in Blackpool's Winter Gardens this year.

"This is always an important gig so we agreed to do it and then that meant that we needed some other gigs to get the band tight enough to do a great show at that prestigious event. The fact that we were going to be playing in an election year was just a happy co-incidence."

So what can fans expect from the show, which will coincide with re-release of the band's third single from 1982 in its original vinyl form? The double A side Kick Out The Tories/Mindless Violence will be available at the gig alongside T-shirts and badges.

"With Simon's return we will, for the moment, be concentrating on the early stuff, but later we will be re-introducing later stuff," said Steve. "In fact, Simon's return will make it more likely that we will move on to our later material in the near future."

As for new material, Steve says its early days but The Newtown Neurotics are as relevant as ever. In 2009 they were named by Q Magazine as one of the Greatest British Power Trios.

"Nothing has changed in that respect since then," says Steve. "I don't think there are currently any bands like us so our shows are exciting, unique and we will leave you with song that you can't get out of your head for days."

Later in the year the band will also be releasing The Newtown Neurotics: Live at Brunel University 1986 album to coincide with their appearance at Rebellion Festival.

Tickets for tomorrow's gig are £8 and are available from www.wegotickets.com. The band will perform at the Voodoo Club in Belfast on Friday, May 22 and Fibber Magees in Dublin on Saturday, May 23.

Funnyman Earl is the Boss-a Nova

ALTERNATIVE comedy circuit star Earl Okin infuses jazz and bossa nova music with humour and will bring his flavour to Dunmow Comedy Club at the Arts Centre Dunmow tomorrow (Friday, April 10).

The 68-year-old has performed with the likes of Paul McCartney and Billy Connolly during his career.

He is in the Guinness Book of Records for most performances by a single artist at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival and gave his 500th solo performance there in 2000.

Earl, whose act is built around music, said: "If you go back 100 years, all comedy was done in the form of comic songs. It is a lost art form."

He plays popular chart songs to a bossa nova rhythm and showcases his own comic, musical material with great pace and timing.

Okin said: "I play bossa nova to completely unsuitable pop songs. The delivery of the songs with my facial expressions and comic timing makes the audience laugh."

The bossa nova genre is a lyrical fusion of samba and jazz originating from Brazil. Earl cites singer Peggy Lee as sparking his love for the music.

He said: "I was fascinated by the chords. It seems simple, but it's very complex. I just love it."

Further comedy derives from Earl's delivery of his material.

At every show, he is introduced to the stage as a "musical genius and sex symbol", which serves to heighten audience reactions.

Okin said: "I always tell the host to say it as if they mean it. Sometimes the more seriously you do something, the funnier it is."

With 48 years of experience in the business, he certainly knows how to put on a show and doesn't show any signs of hanging up his guitar soon, with more performances booked around the UK and in Africa later this year.

"I don't feel any different than I did 30 years ago," he said.

"I'm excited about performing - it's my drug and I'm addicted to music."

"I would only stop if I couldn't sing anymore. For me, music is everything."

Okin also possesses a unique standing as vocal trumpeter, trombonist and clarinetist - it has to be seen to be believed.

Catch Earl Okin with Mark Maier, Imran Yusuf and host Paddy Lennox from 8.30pm tomorrow. Tickets cost £11 at www.wegotickets.com/event/310991 or £12.50 on the door.

FINAL dance for brilliant WILLIAM

A YOUNG dancer will take centre for Harlow Ballet's production of The Nutcracker before embarking on his professional career.

Harlow Ballet was founded 55 years ago by former Sadlers Wells Ballet principal dancer Leo Kersley, who was renowned for preparing male pupils for the professional stage.

Student William Smith is the latest in the long line of successful dancers and has recently achieved a place as a boarder at the Royal Ballet Junior School.

This year's production will probably be the last time Harlow audiences will see him, as William embarks on the first stage of a professional career.

Following stints with the English National Ballet and Ballet Ireland, Joe Bishop will be dancing the Nutcracker Prince in the show.

Audiences will recall him as the Huntsman in Snow White and The Huntsman last Easter, while older supporters will remember him for the Spirit of the Rose in Michael Branwell's Cinderella, which gained him a sponsor and a place at the Royal Ballet School.

Artistic Director Michael Branwell continues to teach in Harlow in addition to his classes at Pineapple Studios and the Central School of Ballet in London. He will be the Father in The Nutcracker.

Michael, along with Wayne Sleep, were the first two boys from the Harlow Ballet School to progress to vocational ballet schools.

Subsequent successful male alumni of the school include Paul Lewis, who became a principal dancer at the English National Ballet and is now Head of Boys at the Royal Ballet Senior School; Richard Bermange, currently dancing with Ballet Ireland; James MacGillivray, who spent 13 years at Scottish Dance Theatre and is now teaching at the London Contemporary Dance School; George Williams, currently a soloist at the National Ballet in Tallinn in Estonia and Keir Briody, who was Principal Dancer with Welsh Independent Ballet (now Ballet Cymru).

Darius James, director of Ballet Cymru, is the President of the Harlow Ballet Association.

■ Harlow Ballet's Nutcracker will be performed at The Playhouse from April 16-19. Tickets cost £7 to £14.

Essex-based comic is back on the road

COMEDIAN Ed Byrne will perform gigs in Hertford, Stevenage and Braintree on his next UK tour.

The stand-up, who lives in Henham, will visit the theatres in the Herts and Essex towns as part of his Outside Looking In tour.

He is best known for his TV appearances on Mock The Week, Have I Got News For You and Live At The Apollo.

Byrne can currently be heard as the host of BBC Radio 4's comedy panel show Britain Vs The Rest Of The World.

Combining his TV career with a passion for the outdoors, he has now broken into factual presenting.

The past two years has seen him appear in Dangerous Roads and Volcano Live on BBC Two.

And for his latest show, Dara and Ed's Great Big Adventure, Byrne and his good friend Dara O'Briain undertook a 4,000-mile (6,437km) journey on the Pan American Highway to Guatemala, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama.

Now back in the UK, he will appear at Braintree Arts Theatre on October 9, Hertford Theatre on October 24 and Gordon Craig Theatre in Stevenage on February 5 next year as part of his UK tour.

Tickets cost £19 and £20. For details and to book, click the Live Dates tab on www.edbyrne.com.

Special screening of a Spielberg classic

E.T. The Extra Terrestrial

SCI-FI: OUTDOOR CINEMA RHS Hyde Hall, Rettendon, Essex (Saturday, May 23 from 6.30pm)

Steven Spielberg's sci-fi classic E.T. The Extraterrestrial is to be screened at Hyde Hall's first ever outdoor cinema event next month.

The heartbreaking tale of the friendship between a lonely young boy and an alien marooned on Earth after his spacecraft leaves without him.

The 1982 film was universally praised for its blend of a compelling, emotional story coupled with impressive special effects and remains one of Spielberg's most enduringly popular films.

It follows the attempts of Elliot (Henry Thomas) a troubled child from a broken home, to help a stranded extraterrestrial find his way home. Keeping the alien hidden from the adults of their suburban community, Elliot and his friends form a bond with ET in a wonderful family film that mixes drama, humour and wonder to great effect.

■ Gates open for this family-friendly screening at 6.30pm and tickets cost £12 per person. You're encouraged to pack a picnic to watch the film by an idyllic lakeside setting as the sun goes down. Bookings via www.essexoutdoorcinema.com

ON TARGET: Keanu Reeves plays a hitman in John Wick

John Wick

THRILLER: (15) 101 minutes
Director: Chad Stahelski
Starring: Keanu Reeves, Michael Nyqvist, Alfie Allen, Willem Dafoe, Adrienne Palicki, John Leguizamo, Ian McShane

THE death of a cherished pet propels a retired hitman to the brink of murderous insanity in Chad Stahelski's blood-soaked action thriller.

Laced with macabre humour and punctuated by balletic fight sequences, John Wick embraces comedy and tragedy as its eponymous hero exacts eye-watering revenge for the slaying of a beloved beagle.

Keanu Reeves delivers one of his most compelling performances since The Matrix Trilogy in the title role, not that Derek Kolstad's script asks a great deal of him.

The actor's restricted repertoire of facial expressions fits perfectly with his assassin's grit and determination despite overwhelming odds, and Reeves is well-equipped for the physical demands of breathless hand-to-hand combat and running gun battles.

A shootout in a club is particularly thrilling and screenwriter Kolstad repeatedly stokes the myth of his protagonist, like when one crime syndicate boss whispers, "I once saw him kill three men in a bar with a pencil".

Hit man John Wick (Reeves) holsters his weapons for good to marry his wife Helen (Bridget Moynahan).

Shortly after terminal illness upends the fairy tale, John receives a present from his wife: an adorable beagle puppy called Daisy and a note which reads, "I have found my peace, now find yours".

The assassin comes to terms with his loss through his bond with the animal.

One night, Russian playboy Josef Tarasov (Alfie Allen) and his underlings (Omer Barnea, Toby Leonard Moore) break into John's home, beat him to a pulp and kill Daisy.

This act of senseless brutality fuels John's lust for revenge and he hunts down Josef, ignoring the fact that his target is the son of powerful mob boss Viggo Tarasov (Michael Nyqvist).

John dismisses Viggo's pleas for leniency so the kingpin puts a 2 million US dollar bounty on the hitman's head, piquing the interest of rival killers Marcus (Willem Dafoe) and Ms Perkins (Adrienne Palicki).

Meanwhile, John takes up lodgings at a hotel called the Continental, which caters for assassins and won't allow murder on its premises.

"You dip so much as a pinky back into this pond, you might find something reaches out and drags you back in," warns hotel owner Winston (Ian McShane).

John Wick recognises its strength and plays to them with wry humour, including an eye-catching turn from Lance Reddick as the Continental hotel's obliging concierge, who doesn't bat an eye at blood spatter on his clientele.

The beagle puppy couldn't be cuter and we're completely behind Reeves' grief-stricken owner as he razes entire establishments in honour of his fallen four-legged friend.

Director Stahelski, who is a stunt co-ordinator by trade, is understandably more comfortable with flying fists than zinging dialogue.

However, he sustains dramatic momentum well and builds all of the wanton slaughter to a suitable grand resolution.

NO PAIN no gain

Game Of Thrones can be pretty dark, but Theron Greyjoy has really been put through the ringer. As season five begins on Monday, Alfie Allen tells Susan Griffin the pain has been worth it

Alfie Allen was first introduced to the public through his big sister Lily's less than flattering ditty dedicated to her sibling's laziness.

The single, simply titled Alfie, was released in 2007 and included the lyric, 'You need to get a job because the bills need to get paid'.

Eight years on, and he's emerged from his teen slump with a starring role as Theon Greyjoy, in the hugely popular medieval fantasy series Game Of Thrones.

"When I got the part, I was watching The Wire, so to be part of an HBO show was just a dream," admits the 28-year-old. "I always thought it would get attention in America, but not be huge throughout the world."

The show, based on the books by George R.R. Martin, might be a phenomenal worldwide success, but none of the cast can rest on their laurels where this hyper-violent show is concerned.

Many characters played by leading names (including Sean Bean and Cinderella's Richard Madden) have been beheaded and mutilated since the series launch in 2011.

"Yeah, I am worried if I'm going to live or not, because I've got a mortgage to pay," jokes Allen, the son of actor Keith.

If you've so far missed the show, Theon was taken hostage as a youngster and brought up with the Stark family at Winterfell castle. He became friends with Robb Stark but later betrayed him and captured the fort, only to find himself at the mercy of captors following a siege.

That was back in series two, and the actor recalls how the writers, knowing his concerns over being killed off, decided to play a prank on him.

"I was asking whether or not I was going to be alive for the third series and the writers gave me a fake script, which said I was stabbed in the heart."

As it was, his character wasn't slain but hauled off to prison, where he spent series three being physically and psychologically tortured at the hands of the psychopathic Ramsay Snow, played by Welsh actor Iwan Rheon.

"I think it's meant to make the audience feel uncomfortable. But my poor mother [Alison Owen, a producer], I feel sorry for her," says Allen, grinning.

In one particularly gruesome scene, Theon was castrated. "I only ever get men talking to me about that," notes the actor, who was born in South West London, attended school in Portsmouth and returned to the capital for college.

And as for the prosthetic penis, that makes numerous appearances at Game Of Thrones conventions...

"It makes me laugh, that my most prized possession, or Theon's, is in a box going to exhibitions. But it's a huge box!" he quips.

By the end of series four, the once arrogant Theon is a broken, submissive man, referred to as Reek [because he resembles "stinking meat", Ramsay spits at him], and even assists his tormentor-turned-master's plans.

"The Stockholm syndrome [in which hostages can end up empathising with their captors] was just touched on in the past series," says Allen, who admits that despite the gruelling scenes, he's enjoyed exploring his character's tormented state.

"I'm sure there are people paying for more blood, but also through the efforts of [co-creator] David Benioff, and hopefully my acting, you can empathise with the character slightly.

"He's been stripped down to nothing. The bedroom was his only point of authority, and so his only weapon has been taken away from him."

He's keen not to ruin any surprises about series five, but will say: "There may be some light at the end of the tunnel in some weird, dark way."

Although Game Of Thrones takes up most of the year, he does have a few months off, and instead of just sitting back and relaxing, Allen's used this time to forge a burgeoning big screen career.

"Without a doubt, Game Of Thrones has helped me get into rooms that I wouldn't have been able to get into before," notes the actor, who in 1998 popped up in the comedy You Are Here, created by Matt Lucas and David Walliams, and the movie Elizabeth, which his mum produced.

He went on to land roles in the teen action flick Agent Cody Banks 2, the critically-acclaimed Atonement, starring James McAvoy and Keira Knightley, and then in 2008, took over from Daniel Radcliffe in the national tour of Equus.

In recent years, he's filmed the thriller Confine with his model friend Daisy Lowe, Plastic, alongside rising star Will Poulter, and this month stars alongside Speed's Keanu Reeves in the action-thriller John Wick (see previous page for review).

TEA AND CAKE with Lisa

We're all busy these days but there's always time to sit down for some soul-soothing tea and cake, as Lisa Faulkner tells Jeananne Craig

LISA Faulkner has a lot to thank Celebrity MasterChef for. Since winning the show in 2010, the former Holby City actress has carved out a successful second career as a TV cook, and released three recipe books.

The BBC One show was also where she met Australian chef John Torode, the firm-but-fair judge who eventually became her boyfriend.

"I took on three jobs at the same time as MasterChef, thinking I would only be in it for a day, and I ended up in it until the end. That was amazing in itself," the 43-year-old says.

"It completely changed my life and I haven't stopped cooking since. It's been amazing, really."

Torode – who she began dating in 2012 – is "lovely, very lovely", according to Faulkner, who has an eight-year-old daughter, Billie, from her marriage to actor Chris Coghill.

"Somebody said, 'so what's it like at home when you're both cooking?' It's just like we're both cooking! It's not like he's going, 'Oh, you need to do that', or, 'Hurry Lisa, you've got five minutes!'," she adds with a laugh.

Things have been busy recently, with the release of her third cookbook, Tea & Cake.

"I wanted to do a book that was just about things that I liked, and memories of tea in days gone by when I was little – things like sandwiches and cake and tins of biscuits," Faulkner explains.

"We run around so much and we are all crazy busy," she adds. "We can get so caught up in everything that's going on, and sometimes just to stop for five minutes with a cup of tea in a pot and a piece of cake, it's like, 'do you know what? Everything's actually all right.'"

BUSY: Former MasterChef winner Lisa Faulkner

Faulkner has also been collaborating with kitchen appliance makers Hotpoint, on a campaign encouraging the nation to love their kitchens and explore their cooking potential (learn more at www.hotpoint.co.uk).

She is keen to stress that image isn't everything when it comes to baking.

"If you've made a cake for somebody you love and there are little dents in it, or the icing falls down the cake, it's how it tastes, who you've made it for and why you've made it [that counts]," she says.

"My grandma was properly slapdash, but she was an amazing cook."

Billie, who Faulkner adopted in 2006 when she was 15 months old, is also a keen chef.

"She loves to cook and bake, and set the table, anything to do with food, she's well into. She likes making pastry and bread, and she loves making chicken noodle soup."

"I feel so very grateful to have her that I spend as much time as possible with her," adds Faulkner, who was 16 when her mother Julie died of cancer. "She and I are a right little team."

While best known for her culinary prowess these days, she hasn't bid farewell to her acting career.

"I went for something the other day – that I didn't get, sadly – but it was nice to go in again," she says.

"What's exciting for me is that I'll only go for characters that I really want, because I have another job that I absolutely love."

As for turning 43 earlier this year, she confesses: "I don't feel like I'm grown up enough to be 43, I feel like a child!"

"It's weird to think that great big number is me," the actress-turned-cook adds. "But when I look back on what I've done, I think, 'God, I've fitted quite a lot in.'"

Fancy a sweet treat? Here's one of Faulkner's delicious recipes to try at home.

Earl Grey Tea Loaf

Ingredients

225g raisins
225g sultanas

TIME FOR TEA: And a slice of Lisa Faulkner's Earl Grey tea loaf

125g dried figs, chopped
125g glace cherries, halved
110g chopped dried apricots
1 Earl Grey tea bag
110g light muscovado sugar
110g dark muscovado sugar
Juice and zest of an orange
Butter, for greasing
110g ground almonds
1tbsp golden syrup
2 eggs, beaten
450g self-raising flour
1tsp ground mixed spice

100ml whole milk

Method

Combine the fruits in a large, heatproof mixing bowl. Pour 300ml boiling water onto the tea bag and leave to brew for a minute or so.

Discard the tea bag then dissolve the sugars in the hot tea, add the orange juice and zest, and pour over the fruit. Stir to combine, then cover and leave to soak overnight.

The next day, preheat the oven to 150C (300F)/gas mark 2, and grease and line a 900g loaf tin with greaseproof paper. Stir the ground almonds, golden syrup and beaten eggs into the soaked fruit mixture then sift in the flour and mixed spice.

Stir to combine, adding the milk if the mixture seems a little stiff, then spoon into the lined tin.

Bake for two to two-and-a-quarter hours, or until a skewer inserted into the middle comes out clean. Transfer to a wire rack and leave to cool completely.

PETS CORNER

Bunnies are not just for Easter

SOME may think giving a pet rabbit to a loved one is an excellent alternative Easter gift but rabbits take a lot of looking after, much like a cat or dog, and their ongoing care shouldn't be taken lightly.

One of Pets Corner's top ethical rabbit breeders, Debbie Withers, offers her advice on what to consider before purchasing a rabbit for your family:

■ Rabbits are sociable creatures and should be kept together or they will become lonely and depressed. They should not, contrary to popular belief, be kept with guinea pigs as they can hurt them and have different dietary requirements.

■ Make sure you have your rabbit's sex checked by an expert to avoid unwanted babies.

■ The cost of owning a pet bunny must be considered. Neutering can cost between £45-£75, about the same as a cat, and as rabbits can live for up to 15 years, other costs such as vaccinations against common rabbit diseases and everyday upkeep including bedding, food and housing should be taken into account.

■ Rabbits need space. Although it is wise to keep them in a secure hutch at night, you should ideally provide them with an equally secure run in your garden that gives them plenty of space and height to run around and jump freely during the day.

■ Pets Corner stock a selection of products perfect for bunnies. To find your local store, please visit www.petscorner.co.uk/store-finder.

Advice courtesy of

Go easy on the bread

THIS time of year is synonymous with the first appearance of ducklings, which must vie with chicks and lambs for the title of spring's cutest characters.

The sight of lines of these tiny balls of fluff, frantically paddling in hot pursuit of their mother, is a much-loved spectacle at rivers and canals across the UK.

Our urge to feed these ducklings and their parents results in a staggering six million loaves of bread being thrown into our waterways annually – around 15 million people said they fed ducks last year. But despite these good intentions, feeding bread to our feathered friends may actually be doing them more harm than good.

Bread is a poor alternative to their natural food such as water plants and grains. It is low in protein and contains added ingredients that waterfowl can't digest properly. Over-dependence can cause the birds to become malnourished and slow and they may find it difficult to escape from predators.

Uneaten soggy bread can cause a build-up of harmful nutrients, too. Rotten bread spreads disease and uneaten crumbs encourage rats.

Even apart from the potential damage to habitats, concentrated feeding at popular spots can result in avian angst as stressed and aggressive birds battle each other for food.

Lots of birds congregating in one place produce large amounts of faeces, which can have a negative effect on water quality and create harmful algae, which clogs the waterway.

This spring, the Canal and River Trust are urging the duck-loving public to 'feed clever' in a bid to beat the breadly backlog.

Wildlife broadcaster Miranda Krestovnikoff, explains:

"Feeding the ducks at your local pond or river has become a long-established favourite pastime for many people, especially parents with young children.

"It is a great way to connect with nature and for young people to learn how to respect wildlife but feeding bread to ducks, or indeed any waterfowl, is not great for their health or their homes.

"Consider swapping bread for healthier treats which are more like their natural diet like leftover lettuce or veg from the Sunday roast.

Killer

For Killer Sudoku, the normal rules of Sudoku apply. However, in addition, the digits in each inner shape (marked by dotted lines) must add up to the number in the top corner of the shape.

Beginning with the highlighted square, follow a continuous path to find the listed things found on a wall. The trail passes through each and every letter once and may twist up, down or sideways but never diagonally.

10 SECOND REVIEW:

Every once in a while a car is launched that instantly makes all of its rivals look stupid and old. Ford pulled that particular trick back in 1998, when it launched the Mk 1 Focus.

Since then, Ford launched a second generation Focus in 2005 and a third generation car in 2011.

BLURRED LINES

TESTED Ford Focus

The Ford Focus didn't feel as if it needed to have much remedial work done, but the latest updates give it a better-looking face, a more user-friendly interior, more efficient engines and some suspension tweaks that aim to remind us what made the Focus great in the first place.

Every once in a while, a car is launched that instantly makes all of its rivals look stupid and old. Ford pulled that particular trick back in 1998, when it launched the Mk 1 Focus. The way it drove was a revelation. Volkswagen had launched its fourth generation Golf the year before and realised that compared to the lithe Focus, here was a car that rode and handled like a supermarket trolley with a caster on the fritz.

As this car has developed, it's become progressively bigger and heavier. We still get into this Ford and expect it to be brilliant, but if you put someone who'd never driven a Focus before in a third generation post-2011 car, chances are they'd wonder what all the fuss was about.

It wasn't that the Focus had lost its touch, it's just that the rest of the market had closed the gap and in some cases overtaken the Ford in terms of driving pleasure. The latest model aims to rectify that with a series of suspension updates.

The biggest change is the uprated dampers, but Ford have also fitted firmer bushings, reprogrammed the stability control to be more progressive and revised the electro-hydraulic steering.

Paddle-shift controls will be available as an option with all automatic and twin-clutch PowerShift transmissions, both diesel and petrol. Focus customers also enjoy a quieter ride, achieved by thicker carpets, thicker side window glass, and improved engine bay insulation.

The engine range has also been revised. The Focus petrol engine line-up now largely hinges around an efficient 1.5-litre EcoBoost unit available in either 150 or 180PS outputs. Buyers can though, continue to opt for the 1.0-litre EcoBoost petrol powerplant in 100 and 120PS guises that was chosen by a third of customers in the pre-facelift model – and a sub-100g/km version has also been developed.

Diesel drivers are catered for with a 1.5-litre TDCi powerplant available in 95 or 120PS outputs. The hot ST version should build on the brilliance of its junior sibling, the livewire Fiesta ST.

Midlife facelifts are usually a tough thing to bring off. The interior has also been given a serious once-over. The fascia design is more intuitive, that button-strewn centre stack and steering wheel being tidied up considerably.

Many of the controls are now marshalled by the SYNC 2 high-resolution, eight-inch colour touch screen system. This includes voice control for 'easier' access to audio, navigation, climate control and compatible mobile phones. One thing that's undoubtedly an improvement is practicality. The centre storage console offers more space as well as a new sliding, integrated armrest.

Model-wise, expect the usual choice of five-door hatchbacks and estates priced mainly in the £15,000 to £25,000 bracket.

The latest Focus ushers in a whole raft of new technology: the Perpendicular Parking system, Cross Traffic Alert and Active City Stop collision avoidance system.

Scrap Cars

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle. That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD). A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

Dragons roar in for play-off

NATIONAL Basketball League Division One champions Essex Leopards are looking to complete the double by winning the play-offs.

The Big Cats host Bradford Dragons in a quarter-final match-up at the Brentwood Centre on Sunday (4pm) and coach Robert Youngblood warned: "We're not done yet, there's three more games and we need to win them all so we can walk out with the play-off trophy."

"I'm not saying that the first two trophies aren't important, but the last two are the ones that people remember."

The Dragons were tipped to do well pre-season, but several close defeats early in the campaign – including a 63-61 loss against the Big Cats at Brentwood – derailed their challenge and they were left sweating on other results before sealing eighth spot in the table and a place in the play-offs.

Leopards also won 75-63 on the road in Bradford to complete a double over the Yorkshire side.

The Big Cats will be aiming to reach a record-breaking fifth straight Final Four, and the prize for Sunday's winner is a semi-final against either Kent Crusaders or Reading Rockets in Sheffield on Sunday April 19.

Leopards wrapped up their league campaign with an 81-57 loss at Manchester Magic on Saturday.

Jephcott wins Gunpower 5K

HARLOW Running Club member Jamie Jephcott was victorious at the Gunpowder parkrun 5K at Waltham Abbey.

He won the race out of 113 finishers in an excellent personal best (PB) time for the distance of 18min 13sec.

His son Daniel was third overall and first U20 in 19:44.

Meanwhile, at the Hatfield Forest parkrun 5K Justin Patten was in 33rd place out of 139 finishers in 24:13.

He was followed home by Jim Bates in 36th place and first veteran 70 in a superb 24:29.

Other Harlow results were: Dave Page (57th in 26:47); Terry Pike (83rd in 28:16); Alan Bore (135th and second vet 70 in 39:54); and Caroline Bore (136th and first woman veteran 60 in 40:13).

At the Harlow parkrun 5K, Spencer Brooks was 14th out of 97 finishers in 24:35 and Alan Wellbelove was 32nd in 26:57.

At the Mid Essex Casuals Eggstravaganza Trail half marathon, Darren Coates was sixth out of 33 finishers in 1hr 49min 16sec.

Hollie third at Essex champs

HOLLIE McArdell secured a brilliant third place at the Essex Primary School Cross Country Championships at a wet and windy Southend.

The Harlow youngster was competing in the Year 6 girls' category.

St Nicholas student Ellie Hill was 16th in this race.

In the Year 4 girls' race, Ruby McRudden (Henry Moore) was 35th.

Daisy Poole (Water Lane) was 23rd in the Year 5 girls.

In the Year 5 boys' race, Tyler Jackson (Churchgate Street) was 14th.

International rugby players present team with shield

RUGBY youngsters from Passmore School got to meet England World Cup winner Rachael Burford and other top players at the Essex Schools' county finals.

South African international players Portia Jonga and Zandile Nojoko, plus England's Emily Scott also presented a shield to one of the successful Passmore teams.

The Harlow secondary school enjoyed tremendous success at the Essex finals day, held at Thurrock Rugby Club.

Most successful Passmore teams were the Year 10/11 boys' side, who won their tournament and were unbeaten on the day, and the Year 7/8 girls, who also did not lose a game in winning the Essex schools' shield.

The Year 7 boys' team played in the finals after winning the West Essex tournament, remaining unbeaten.

The Year 10/11 girls and Year 7/8 girls also competed in the Essex finals, but failed to progress from the group stages.

Passmore PE teacher Jack Elston explained: "We had four rugby sides representing Passmore Academy at the Essex finals."

"In order to play in this tournament the sides had to win the West Essex tournaments, held at Upper Clapton Rugby Club, which four of our school's sides did."

"This was already a great achievement, and for us to say that we have four age groups, which were arguably the best in west Essex, was great for the students."

"The Essex tournament saw a big step up in level and proved to be a great learning experience for all four teams."

He added: "Our biggest success was our Year 7/8 girls who did not lose a game winning the Essex schools shield. As an addition to this great success the girls got to meet five international players who were at the tournament to promote female rugby and presented the shield to the students."

All Hale super karters as they set title pace

Racers upbeat after great start to national champs

SUCCESSIVE victories has left the Harlow-based Team G3pro and Team Farécla brimming with confidence ahead of the third round of their karting national championship.

The teams head up to Red Lodge in Suffolk for the next round of their championship on April 24.

Driver Matt Hale said: "Back to back wins. Things cannot get much better. Although it's still early days in the championship. Now we set our focus firmly on round three."

Hale joined brothers Craig, Barry and Stewart Luetchford for the second round races at Ellough Park Raceway in Suffolk.

Team G3Pro drivers Hale and Barry Luetchford were full of confidence after a convincing round one victory in Kent last month, but knew they would have to be at the top of their game to repeat the same success.

Sharp end

The day started fairly well with Barry able to qualify the team at the sharp end of the grid in sixth out of 31 teams.

Barry fought his way forward when the race began and moved up to third place at the first of five fuel stops.

During the race, Team G3Pro were trading places with their closest rivals Koks Racing, but it was a lightning-quick final pit stop which got the pair to second place and eight seconds behind the leaders with 16 laps remaining.

Hale, behind the wheel for the final stint, chipped away at the leaders' advantage and with four laps left to go, shifted into first place.

Hale said: "We raced at Ellough Park two years ago and it didn't go well. It's not our favourite track that's for sure but me and Barry were both on form and we had to push our driving to the edge of the track limits to stay in contention."

"Our pit stops made the difference thanks to our sister team Farécla who we execute each pit stop with."

"Chasing down the leaders at the end of the race was pretty exciting. I could see the guys on the pit wall willing me on to close the gap – after I took the lead I had to keep it together until I crossed the line."

In the second race, Team Farécla remained optimistic despite mechanical issues.

The Luetchford brothers noticed during practice and qualifying that the kart had issues with grip, which Stewart particularly noticed in his first stint meaning he was only able to qualify fourth in class (21st on grid).

The team had an eventful first lap, making up several places but, on coming up to the seventh bend, another driver cut right across the racing line and Stewart had to take evasive action to avoid contact. With the lack of grip, this sent him into a spin, and to the back of the grid.

Just when they thought it couldn't get worse, just over an hour into the race, the kart suffered a puncture, relegating it to the pits for a wheel change and meaning a loss of two laps and several places.

Craig was up next for his second stint and if things could go from bad to worse to disastrous, they did. He lost a wheel.

"The front right wheel ripped free from the kart on a fast 90-degree bend.

Craig skilfully avoided crashing, got the kart back to the pits, and the team got a new vehicle.

Thankfully the race continued without more drama, but the team weren't able to recoup the loss, and finished towards the back.

This means that while Team G3pro top the championship table, Farécla are bottom.

Craig said: "That's just how racing goes sadly. This is a learning curve for me so still very much excited about the next race at Red Lodge where we hope to make improvements."

Perfect Penguins pool together to soar high

Club diving onwards and upwards after 2007 setback

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertssexnews.co.uk

LIKE a phoenix rising from the ashes, Harlow Penguins Swimming Club is certainly back on top after one of the most difficult chapters in its history.

Penguins were left without a venue for 18 months after the closure of the old pool in Second Avenue due to health and safety issues in 2007.

But since it moved into the plush, state-of-the-art Leisurezone complex in First Avenue, membership has rapidly grown and now there are nearly 400 members once again.

These range from the many youngsters competing in national, regional and county competitions to 75-year-old Masters swimmer and coach Alan Canham.

Canham's claim to fame outside his swimming success is that he was an accountant who helped Tottenham Hotspur oversee the shock transfer of Argentinian World Cup winning stars Ossie Ardiles and Ricky Villa in 1978.

Canham has coached at Harlow Penguins over four decades.

Having battled back from cancer, Canham has seen big changes over the last few years.

From a low of 40 members, the club is buzzing again.

Past glories

Head coach Martin Stringer explained: "The club has a small band of Masters swimmers actively looking to relive past glories or develop their swimming as a result of taking up events like triathlon.

"This is led by Alan Canham, one of our most distinguished swimmers.

"At the tender age of 75, he is a former Masters national record holder, who will actively encourage people to swim. The group caters for a wide range of ability."

Meanwhile, Penguins' younger swimmers have caught the eye over the last 12 months.

With the opening of the Leisurezone, the Harlow club has rapidly developed into a real powerhouse within Essex swimming and their rise up the rankings has been amazing.

Just four years ago the club had three swimmers competing in three events at the Essex County Championships.

However, in 2015 Penguins had 50 swimmers competing in 257 events and at present it has more qualifiers for the Eastern Regional Championships than it had qualified for the county champs two years ago.

In 2015 the club won 13 individual and one team county title, with top honours going to some of its outstanding prospects such as Mason Arnold and Carys Brealey who won five event championships.

the UK in her age group for her favoured 100m freestyle.

After starting out in division four of the Essex League in 2012, successive promotions have put the club back into division one, and its junior team is now competing in the top division of the National Junior Swimming League and will shortly start their 2015 campaign.

Stringer explained: "Penguins provide a complete competitive pathway - Penguins Swim School provides swimming lessons for nearly 180 children ranging in ability from complete non-swimmers to improvers.

"Taught by a fantastic team of teachers, we operate from the Leisurezone on a Friday 6-7pm where the whole pool, including the learner pool, is used to create a complete teaching environment."

Just over two years ago the club launched its Penguins Academy.

With space for 160 swimmers this has been an outstanding success and many of the current junior squad swimmers who are competing at the county championship or in league galas have come through the Academy.

Coached by some of the club's more experienced and qualified staff including Sarah Stringer (head of Swim School) and Darren Tucker (assistant head coach), Academy swimmers are given the opportunity to compete and recently six Academy swimmers made their competitive debuts in the recent Essex mini league gala.

There are four main competitive Penguins squads which cater for both senior and junior swimmers.

Stringer said: "This is where the serious training is undertaken, some of these swimmers will be seen in the pool training seven or eight times a week and that will include the morning shift that starts at 6.15am.

"Swimmers are expected to compete and as results indicate will achieve qualification at Essex county, East Region and hopefully national level.

"The club is achieving great, high level results but there is a lot more to the Harlow Penguins than these 50 swimmers.

"Overall, the club has nearly 400 members and we are always looking to develop the champions of the future and this is achieved with the help of a dedicated group of volunteers and a lot of behind the scenes work."

Max powers to UK top ten as swimmers hit top form

HARLOW Penguins hosted their third junior development meet at the Leisurezone.

The squad of 60 swimmers were competing against 140 swimmers from 12 clubs from across Hertfordshire and Essex.

The evening proved to be highly competitive and successful for Penguins with 18 of the club's swimmers taking home a gold medal.

Penguins' most successful swimmer on the night was Kate Henshall who dominated the 13/U age group, picking up four gold medals on the evening and recording three personal best (PB) times in the 50m backstroke (37.07sec), 50m breaststroke (42.24) and 100m individual medley (1:19.17).

As a development meet, this gave Penguins the opportunity to give swimmers their first experience of an open meet, and Max Arnold certainly made the most of his debut.

Swimming in the 9/U age group Max stormed home to win the 50m backstroke in a time of 45.53 and followed this up with a silver medal performances in the 50m freestyle (40.13) and 100m individual medley (1:40.92).

As a result of his efforts, Max is now ranked in the top ten in the UK.

On the night, Penguins dominated the meet, Callum Wright (13/U) won his three events and smashed his PB in the 50m butterfly, his time of 34.09 just outside a regional qualifying time.

Best times

Callum also set new best times in the 50m backstroke (38.61) and the 100m individual medley (1:17.00).

Other multiple gold medallists on the night were: Tyler Jackson in the 10/U 50m freestyle (35.58), and 100m individual medley (1:31.74) and Phoebe White in the 9/U 50m butterfly (40.66) and 100m individual medley (1:32.10).

The club's other gold medallists were: Lucas Hine, Ben Stringer, Claudia King, Ellie Cronin, Lily Taylor, Saul Linton-Baker, Cailin Walker, Emma Guerrati, Taavo Moran, Jack Mansfield, Adam Fearon and Kade Wright.

A lot of these medals were achieved in the youngest age categories, which bodes well for the future of the club.

Swimming in their first event, Anna Combes, Ezra Fields, Fleur Mantle, Katy Clark, Louis Hemmings, Neha Gandesha, Roman Muiznieks, Thomas Williams and Tilly Hull all produced some amazing swims.

Louis Hemmings (9) performed superbly in his first ever competitive swim - the 50m butterfly. His time of 58.04 produced a bronze medal.

"Overall this was a great night for the club. There were many outstanding individual performances. In the 167 events competed in, Penguin swimmers recorded 124 best times and were by a long distance the best club on the night," added head coach Martin Stringer.

'WE'VE NOT GOT TITLE JITTERS'

Pressure on leaders says defender as Hawks cut gap

by Jack Kinnersley

star-sport@hertssexnews.co.uk

MARC GORBELL is convinced all the pressure is on Ryman North leaders Needham Market despite both teams getting the title jitters over the Easter bank holiday matches.

The Hawks bounced back from their 2-0 Saturday home loss to Cray Wanderers by beating close neighbours Ware on Easter Monday.

Meanwhile, Needham could only draw both their matches and are now just a point clear at the top.

Ahead of Saturday's home match against Maldon & Tiptree, Gorbell said: "We're up for it. I think anyone should be scared of us, we'll be the ones up for the game and we have got to take it to them."

Nothing to lose

"They [Needham] are the ones in the driving seat so we have nothing to lose going there [in the penultimate game of the season].

"The play-offs are a different kettle of fish, it's like a cup final, every game. I think we've got enough ability going forward so we can beat anyone on our day."

"It would be a shame not to win the league but we take each game as it comes."

If the Hawks do get promoted, Gorbell thinks his side can be a force in the Ryman Premier if the squad remains the same.

"As long as the boys stick together, there are some tough teams in that league but I think we can do some damage, I really think we can."

Gorbell impressed in the 2-1 victory over Ware. He said: "Every win is important nowadays, especially fighting for the title but coming to a place like this isn't going to be easy."

"I think the boys showed great character and determination, especially after the result on Saturday. It's great credit to the lads."

Harlow led 1-0 at the break but Gorbell said Hawks boss Danny Chapman's wise words at half-time were key.

"To be honest, he told us to relax a little bit, which isn't what he says often to be honest but we were so disappointed with Saturday we wanted to put things right. We were a little bit gung-ho today so he told us to settle down a little bit and I think it worked."

Jamie Guy had given Harlow the lead from the spot and central defender Gorbell said the experienced striker has been a crucial acquisition in the absence of Alex Read.

"As we all know Read is a big miss, but Jamie Guy has done just as good as a job as Read has. He has given us a little bit more sometimes by putting himself about," Gorbell said.

"He is scoring goals so we can't ask for much more can we?"

Despite a late penalty the Hawks held on to record another priceless three points and cut the gap at the top.

"The game was quite open so there are going to be things happening like that. I thought we were in control but obviously it was a little bit squeaky bum time. However, I thought we dealt with the pressure quite well," he added.

Woeful defeat ends great run

HAWKS boss Danny Chapman was left stunned as his side produced one of their worst displays of the season, suffering a 2-0 loss to lowly Cray Wanderers.

Saturday's loss, only their second at home in Ryman North this season, ended Harlow's six-match winning run.

Chapman fumed: "No one turned up. You can't take anything away from Cray, they were by far the better side."

"They did their jobs better than us. We just lacked a little bit of desire if I'm being honest."

"I have got no problem with the Cray players, they played the game, they have some experienced players and they used that experience."

"I think the referee could have been a little bit more on top of it. He was influenced by people. I'm not blaming the referee and I'm not blaming anyone else. We just weren't good enough."

Tom Ayotomiwa gave Cray the lead on 49 minutes, firing a shot across goal and into a bottom corner beyond the out-stretched Hawks keeper Andy Walker.

Alex Teniola grabbed a second, stabbing in from close range on 83 minutes.

Shane Stamp went off injured and missed the subsequent Ware game and is doubtful for Saturday's home match against Maldon & Tiptree.

Shock as Luke quits Rockets

RYE House Restart Rockets have been rocked by the shock news that team stalwart Luke Bowen, from Harlow, has decided to stand down from the side.

Former Mark Hall School student Bowen, who has been with the Hoddesdon club since 2002 and had a testimonial year last season, has had a difficult start to the new campaign.

He has scored just six points from three matches.

But Bowen insisted he wasn't walking away from speedway.

"I'm not quitting the sport, I'm standing down from the team. I've still got all my equipment and I still enjoy my racing - I just want to think about what I want to do. It's time for a change."

The 29-year-old added: "I'd like to take this opportunity to thank all the fans that have supported me over the years."

Team manager John Sampford said: "We can only thank Luke for all the service he has given over the years, and sincerely hope that we will see him back in the saddle again soon."

Derby delight at Ware as promotion race goes to wire

HARLOW Town closed the gap at the top of Ryman North to one point after grinding out a hard-fought 2-1 victory over neighbours Ware.

Harlow gave a start to teenage centre-half Dan Matsuzaka, who has re-signed on loan from Southend United.

The visitors grabbed their breakthrough when former Needham Market striker Jamie Guy was bundled over in the box by substitute Jack Fowler on 43 minutes.

Guy stepped up and dispatched his penalty into the top right corner, sending keeper Tom Coulton the wrong way.

Junior Dadson almost capitalised when the referee blocked a Ware pass and sent the Hawks winger in on goal. However, Coulton saved to spare the ref's blushes.

Harlow finally gave themselves some breathing space in the 67th minute when Craig Pope's effort deflected off Coulton's leg and found the back of the net.

There were nervous moments for Harlow in the closing stages as the hosts were awarded a penalty with two minutes to go.

Finbarr Robins, who made an impressive impact when he came on, burst into the box and was brought down giving the Blues an opportunity to get back into the game.

Sean Johnson coolly slotted the ball into the bottom left corner.

Harlow were shaky towards the end but managed to hang on in the last few minutes to secure what could be an important three points.
